

Developing RSE Specialism in SEND schools

Relationships and Sex Education (RSE) & Special Educational Needs and Disabilities (SEND) specialist Rachael Baker leads this Sex Education Forum training supporting teachers to become competent and confident RSE leads in SEND schools.

- ✓ Become skilled in developing an inclusive and comprehensive RSE curriculum, including what to teach & how to teach it.
- ✓ Gain confidence in providing meaningful RSE for learners with SEND that aims to foster learners' independence.
- ✓ Apply the statutory RSHE guidance.
- ✓ Successfully lead and champion RSE, bringing together your school community including families and support staff.

Programme (online) – 2025
8 May	Welcome
14 May	Creating inclusive, accessible RSE for learners with SEND
3 June	Taking a rights-based approach to RSE – bringing your school and families together
12 June	Planning & delivering meaningful RSE
8 July	Sharing practice and next steps

The training comprises a series of three interactive online one day sessions with discussion and small group work, enabling practice sharing with peers. Course dates are carefully paced, giving opportunity for trainer input and putting learning into practice.

What does the programme include?

- ❑ Welcome session to meet fellow participants, tailor objectives and develop working together agreements.
- ❑ Three full days of in depth SEND specialist RSE training.
- ❑ Activities to carry out in school between sessions to cascade your experience to colleagues.
- ❑ A final session where participants will bring and share their experiences of delivering RSE.
- ❑ Plus all session slides, guidance and ideas to try in school, bespoke question and answer opportunities, and signposting to useful resources.

Who should attend?

The programme is designed for teachers of RSE in SEND schools working with learners with moderate to severe learning disabilities and Autistic Spectrum conditions.

How much does it cost?

£595 for members, or £625 for non-members, providing over 20 hours of continuing professional development.

For more information and booking please email info@sexeducationforum.org.uk

“ Thought provoking and challenges when it needs to. Definitely good to hear other professionals discussing same or similar issues and how they can be addressed.

Be prepared for your thoughts to be challenged in a safe and secure way!

One of the best facilitators I've had. Fantastic course that I would recommend.

2024 Developing RSE Specialism in SEND schools course participants

www.sexeducationforum.org.uk/SEND

